Session 4&5: Coaching & Mentoring

Coaching and mentoring are development approaches based on one-to-one conversations to enhance an individual's skills, knowledge, or work performance. It's possible to draw distinctions between coaching and mentoring, although, in practice, the two terms are often used interchangeably. The focus is on meeting particular objectives within a set period. Coaching is mainly concerned with performance and the development of specific skills.

Session 6: Leading or Managing

Leader's influence (ASK). Managers direct (TELL). While it may not be black and white, leaders generally focus on what matters and why, as managers focus on how. Both use different forms of influence and direction at other times. But leaders are biased toward influencing by inspiring and enabling through advice, counsel and co-creation. In contrast, managers tend to command, control, organise, coordinate, and tell. In this session, we focus on the difference between leading versus managing and the role in problem-solving and making critical decisions.
